from his home in remote eskimo village nick jans leads us into a vast magical world alaska s brooks range drawn from fourteen years of arctic experience the last light breaking offers a rare perspective on america s last great wilderness and its people the inupiat natives an ancient culture on the cusp of change making a poignant connection between the world he describes and the world of the inupiat once knew nick jans invokes with stunning power the life of the eskimos in the harsh arctic and the mystical aura of the wilderness of the far north with the eye of an outdoorsman and the heart of a poet jans weaves together these 23 essays with strands of native american narrative making vivid a place where wolves and grizzlies still roam free hunters follow the caribou and old women cast their nets in the dust as they have for countless generations but looming on the horizon is the world of roads and modern technology the future has already arrived in the form of stop signs computers and satellite dishes jans creates unforgettable images of a proud people facing an uncertain future and of his own journey through this haunting timeless landscape at the outset of the twentieth century the nivkhi of sakhalin island were a small population of fishermen under russian dominion and an asian cultural sway the turbulence of the decades that followed would transform them dramatically while russian missionaries hounded them for their pagan ways lenin praised them while stalin routed them in purges khrushchev gave them respite and while brezhnev organized complex resettlement campaigns gorbachev pronounced that they were free to resume a traditional life but what is tradition after seven decades of building a soviet world based on years of research in the former soviet union bruce grant s book draws upon nivkh interviews newly opened archives and rarely translated soviet ethnographic texts to examine the effects of this remarkable state venture in the construction of identity with a keen sensitivity grant explores the often paradoxical participation by nivkhi in these shifting waves of sovietization and poses questions about how cultural identity is constituted and reconstituted restructured and dismantled part chronicle of modernization part saga of memory and forgetting in the soviet house of culture is an interpretive ethnography of one people s attempts to recapture the past as they look toward the future this is a book that will appeal to anthropologists and historians alike as well as to anyone who is interested in the people and politics of the former soviet union this book suggests ideas for sharing literature that may be utilized in developing a scope and sequence of literature experiences for children in grades k 5 for primary grades k 2 the activities are primarily arranged through sharing the works of a particular author or illustrator through this deliberate exploration the child begins to know that person as a friend s he is excited about new books by that same author or illustrator and discusses books on a level not often achieved if authors are approached only haphazardly those included represent a variety of classic and current authors and illustrators too good to miss who have made a particular contribution to literature for young people written 30 years ago as the first synthesis of european and anglo american methods in vegetation ecology this text remains as current and topical today as it was a quarter of a century ago because the progress that has been made in vegetation science is in the computer based treatment of sample data not in the creation of new sampling protocols
