the classic study of post cold war international relations more relevant than ever in the post 9 11 world with a new foreword by zbigniew brzezinski since its initial publication the clash of civilizations and the remaking of world order has become a classic work of international relations and one of the most influential books ever written about foreign affairs an insightful and powerful analysis of the forces driving global politics it is as indispensable to our understanding of american foreign policy today as the day it was published as former national security adviser zbigniew brzezinski says in his new foreword to the book it has earned a place on the shelf of only about a dozen or so truly enduring works that provide the quintessential insights necessary for a broad understanding of world affairs in our time samuel huntington explains how clashes between civilizations are the greatest threat to world peace but also how an international order based on civilizations is the best safeguard against war events since the publication of the book have proved the wisdom of that analysis the 9 11 attacks and wars in iraq and afghanistan have demonstrated the threat of civilizations but have also shown how vital international cross civilization cooperation is to restoring peace as ideological distinctions among nations have been replaced by cultural differences world politics has been reconfigured across the globe new conflicts and new cooperation have replaced the old order of the cold war era the clash of civilizations and the remaking of world order explains how the population explosion in muslim countries and the economic rise of east asia are changing global politics these developments challenge western dominance promote opposition to supposedly universal western ideals and intensify intercivilization conflict over such issues as nuclear proliferation immigration human rights and democracy the muslim population surge has led to many small wars throughout eurasia and the rise of china could lead to a global war of civilizations huntington offers a strategy for the west to preserve its unique culture and emphasizes the need for people everywhere to learn to coexist in a complex multipolar multicivilizational world recent debates have highlighted the importance of the self to a better understanding of the nature of culture and its relation to power in his new book john mandalios incorporates the current postmodern debate on these issues with a deeper philosophical exploration of identity and cultural formation and the dynamics of social power underlying them he takes up identity formation within an analysis of the historical social political religious and psychoanalytical dimensions of civilized life that can be traced back to the classical world questions ordinarily associated with the postmodern condition otherness fragmentation power the situated self disciplinary practices and multiplicity are related to the problematic of human subjectivity and how civilized modes of conduct of the self cannot simply be explained by national cultural traditions mandalios argues that self identity is not reducible to the effects of globalization or power or any one single collective identity representation the self is enveloped within a complex which requires a civilization analytic perspective into the world and the inner life english abstract while his fellow animals appear to have accepted their imprisoned reality in a zoo as being comfortable and safe a jaguar rushes through his cage with restlessness and rage it is not his restlessness and rage alone that mesmerize the human spectators who gather with awe in front of his cell rather it is the amazing contrast to the other animals behaviour that makes them turn towards the jaguars cage in a state of fascination something is bodily captured that is spiritually free the difference between vitality and lethargy cannot be shown more drastically than in ted hughes the jaguar the second poem of his first anthology the hawk in the rain 1957 indeed hughes was obsessed with the struggle between these two concepts which he equated with life and death both vitality and lethargy manifest themselves at the extreme in the fundamentally different reactions of the animals to their confinement deeply connected with this contrast is hughes criticism of modern western civilization which he poetically formulates in his poem by his sympathising with the enraged jaguar he turns strictly against the apathetic cosiness of modern civilizations the most blatant failure of which he identifies in the loss of humans animality this animality the magical closeness and return to the instincts and the primordial inherent strength in human beings is not only respected but passionately emphasized by hughes as a prerequisite for any vital humane existence modern societies that live in disregard for their animality and replace it completely with science and rationality lose their inner vital power and must eventually expire into lethal stagnation that is why ted hughes depicts civilization and animality as diametrically excluding each other the following analysis aims at elucidating the thesis of a metaphorical allusion to the dichotomy of civilization and animality in the jaguar therefore it is indispensable to point out at first which images ted hughes creates to depict the relation between civilization and lethargy in a second step his imagination of what animality actually is has to be presented before it must be portrayed finally to what extent according to hughes the oppositeness of modern civilization and animality manifests itself and whether or not it may be resolved
